Snoqualmie Valley Key Leaders meet at a moment of historical importance this year. As our region responds to a global pandemic, stay at home orders, a Greater Recession, and civil unrest, it is incumbent on those in positions of authority and influence to determine how to provide compassionate direction to the communities we lead. One way to make sense of so much disruption and change is to select a single lens through which to examine the whole. At Key Leaders Summit 2020, we will pick up the lens of racial equity to diagnose the situation the Valley is in today and develop a prescription for next steps.

Join us to learn more about:

- What is racial equity and why would it matter in a place like Snoqualmie Valley?
- What are the ways we perpetuate racism without knowing it?
- How do our views about racial equity affect the ways we lead in the other areas of our lives?
- What can I do to make a difference at this historic moment?

Please Join us for the 2020 Key Leaders Summit.

Leaders become great, not because of their power, but because of their ability to empower others.

Session 3: Transforming Stress

There’s no doubt that we are living in challenging times. Stress, anxiety and difficult emotions are common things, that is why learning how to positively deal with our stress is important and can make a real difference in our health and the quality of our lives. We will talk a little bit about how stress can affect our bodies and minds and then learn some simple techniques to transform that stress and use basic teachings of mindfulness to help find an inner calm during difficult times.
Thank you to the Snoqualmie Tribe for a $50,000 grant!
